The budget calls for spening of $9,931,491 for the scho year. Most of that - $8.4 million - will be in the district's education fund, which pays most of the day-to-day expenses.

Baricevic, Harmon agree on new bridge

New span could be open by 2010

St. Clair County Board chairman John Baricevic and St. Louis Mayor Clarence Harmon announced Tuesday they have reached an agreement on a new Mississippi METRO EAST

"St. Louis is our downtown." Baricevic said. "It's important; and we need to build a bridge."

The $550 million, eight-lane bridge could be in place as early as 2010.
Planning for the bridge was delayed for a few months because Harmon was concerned about the aesthetic value of the bridge because Harmon was concerned about the aesthetic value of the bridge is on traffic in St. Louis.

Both sides agree that a bridge is necessary, but the city does not want the bridge to create a boundary between north St. Louis and downtown. The height of the bridge is being lowered to accommodate the concerns of the City of St. Louis.

The final design of the bridge has not been decided, but St. Louis and St. Clair County have agreed it should the "world-class" design. An advisory council of residents, usinesses, downtown planners and officials will be created to work with designers.

Metro East soccer has been topsy-turvy so far this season

It's payback time for many area high school boys soccer teams. Triad and Belleville East have had success in their respective conferences in recent seasons, but now it's time for their league brethren to ceatch im time for their league brethren to catch up.

Triad has dominated the Mississippi Valley Conference for at least seven years, but the Knights have taken their lumps this season after being hit heavily by graduation. Many of the players from their 1999 graduating class started as freshmen, including all-staters Todd Bruns and Kyle Rainwater. Bruns is playing college ball at McKendree College in Lebanon, while Rainwater is at Wisconsin-Green Bay, De Hellon remains, but it's been a heavy load for the all-state candidate to carry. The Knights have already fallen to league rivals Mascoutah (2-1), Highland (4-1) and Waterloo (3-1).

Belleville East, under coach Gary, Carr, has become a force in the Southwestern Conference. But the talent well apparently has run dry for the Lancers this season, as they have been out of many games, including an 8-1 pasting by Collinsville. East also lost 3-2 to Edwardsville in league an 8-1 pasting by Collinsville. East also lost 3-2 to Edwardsville in league play this season.

Collinsville will host Edwardsville on Sept. 30 in a game that could decide the SWC championship. Edwardsville pinned a 3-0 loss on defending league champion Gagainst East and Belleville West..
Grante City has been a mystery. The Warriors posted a 1-0 win over perennial Missouri powerhouse Richmond Heights (Mo.) CBC, then lost to Edwardsville, hammered St. Charles County (Mo.) Francis Howell and this week got pasted 5-0 by small west St. Louis County private school Whitfield.
When asked the last time his team was beaten so badly, Grantle City coach Gene Baker said, "I try not to remember those games."

The Warriors also were blasted by 1998 Class A Illinois state champion Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin 4-6 earlier this season. Grantic City also owns a 2-2 tie with Kirkwood (Mo.) Vianney, another perennial Missouri power know which Granite City team is going to show up.

O'Fallon seems to be the power in Class AA in the Metro East so far. The Panthers own a 2-1 victory against Collinsville and were off to a 9-0 start after beating Hazelwood (Mo.) West in the opening round of the Hazelwood (Mo.) Central Tournament on Monday.

While the Panthers have improved their schedule in recent years, they are always suspect when it comes to playoff time because they typically don't endure the rugged schedule that Granite City, Collinsville and Edwardsville do. O'Fallon's schedule will improve even more next season when the Panthers join the Southwestern Conference.

O'Fallon's current conference the O'Fallon's current conference, as South Seven, is getting better in soc-cer. Marion played O'Fallon to a 1-0 loss this season. The Wildcats have won five of their first six games.

Belleville Althoff will join the Believille Attnort will join the South Seven next season, taking O'Fallon's place, and most likely will be battling Carbondale on a regular basis for the conference title. The Crusaders lost to Carbondale in IHSA Class A supersectional play last season and again could go at least that far again this season.

FINAL WEEKS - FINAL WEEKS - FINAL WEEKS - FINAL WEEKS

A victory is a beautiful thing.

After coming so close to posting its first win in the first three weeks of the season, the Collinsville High football team finally posted a victory against Granite City last week.

The Kahoks (1-3) face a winless Southwestern Conference foe for the second consecutive week in Belleville East. The teams will tangle 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Township Stadium in Belleville.

"We need to make sure we don't have a letdown," Kane said. "We have to make sure we go out there this week and work just as hard as we have any other week."

"Jon has come a long way and he has a

"But that is what we are trying to do. We don't have any great master plan, but we are going to try to run the ball and set up the pass so that we can pass when we want to pass, instead of passing when we have to pass."

While Althoff is below .500, its losses -like Granite City's - have been against tough customers. Both teams have lost to imbeaten Cahokia and the Crusaders other loss was to Metamora. They beat Belleville West 29-0.

"I don't know if I always want to play tough teams, but we are in a situation where we do play tough teams," Petrillo said. "I think it does make us better. I think we have to play harder and I think we have to rise to that level of competition and meet that challenge.

"So far I think our kids have done a real good job of playing some very tough competition. A couple of times we kind of wish the hall would have gone a situation the looking at 2-2 or 3-1 rather than 0-4.

"But that's the game of football. It's a matter of inches. Out of maybe 60 plays in a game, one or two plays can decide the outcome."

May to be sidelined at least 2 more weeks

Unfortunately, he got tackled when were in the shotgun and he just happened to fall on that shoulder that was a little tender.
"He won't see any action this week, We'll sit him out for at least two weeks, We'll try and have him ready for Belleville East (Oct. 1), but might be Belleville West (Oct.
8). We just don't know right now. He's a competitor and for the can be out there he will be out there. But he will be to be in a ballgame until our trainer tells us he is ready to Speed, vinior Jep Pranko

go." Speedy junior Jon Franko again has the reins of an offense that has been able to move the ball downfield, with a lot of help from Franko's scrambling, but hasn't had much success punching through to paydirt.

"We are not sitting here saying 'Oh, woe is me, because Zack is out," Petrillo said. "Jon Franko is a good athlete and a good competitor and our kids believe in him because he adds another dimension (the ability to run the option). That's not taking anything awdy from one quarterback or another, they both have their strengths and weaknesses.

"That's just the way life is. We can't sit around holding our heads and bemoan the fact that Zack is hurt. We have to go forward, and thank goodness we are blessed with two quarterbacks who are very strong competitors. We have a third quarterback, Scott Pringle, who is starting to come along too; and if something happens to Jonny, Scotty would see some action too. We hope those things don't happen, obviously. We hope to be able to put Scott in when we were the second of the second of the second of the when he has to go in."

The Warriors have not the injury, or an 0-4 start with three losses by 10 points or less, get them down.

"With the injury, that's just the way life is and these kids have responded real well," Petrillo said. "They haven't sat around and bemoaned the fact that Zack is not there. At the same time, Zack has been there encouraging Jon Franko and talking and working with him.

"This is really a team effort. I have said this from the beginning of the year - this a great group of kids who work hard together to be better as a team, and they have done that."

Neither his car's owner, Felix Sabates, nor his parents were on hand in New Hampshire, but Joe Nemechek won his first Winston Cup race anyway, holding off Tony Stewart in the Duralube/Kmarl 300.

It was a rare moment indeed for the 35-year-old former Busch

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Filiatt Sadler vs. Terry Labonte

The luckless Labonte weathered one major crash, was competitive for most of the day at New Hampshire and led 37 teps. What relegated him to a 31st-jace finish was a tap from rookle Elliott Sadlor's Ford in lap 297. "I'm tired of getting run over," sald Labonte. "It was just something I dlan't really want to do," sald Sadler.

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion:
"Sadler, his own rookle year obscured by the unprecedented success of Tony Stewart, is getting better and better. The incident cost him a top-10 finish and certainly wasn't intentional, but it's small consolation to Labonite."

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
I want to know why there is such a big stink about Dale Earnhardt taking out Terry Labonte. If it had been Terry behind Dale and be had a chance to do it, he would have.
Anyone else would have done it also, and NASCAR would rule it just hard racing. If you do not believe me, go back over some of the tapes of previous races.

As far as my opinion goes,
Dale Earnhardt won the race fair and square. Why was there nothing said about Terry hitting Dale in the corners?

Amen. You should have read all the letters. In the 10 days fol-lowing the race, we received 172 letters concerning the incident. By our tally, 129 were anti-Earnhardt, 42 were pro-Earnhardt, and one was some-what neutral.

How Hunters & Angler Pay For Conservation

Over a quarter century ago, National Hunting & Fishing Day® was established by Congress to recognize generations of hunters and anglers for their commitment to wildlife conservation and to encourage the public to learn more about the crucial role that the outdoor sports play in funding America's conservation programs. NHF Day is now a 28-year tradition observed with thousands of local events and activities

Everybody got to be Italian in Collinsville last week as the 16th annual Italian Fest took over the city's downtown. Organizers estimate the two-day event drew 150,000 to enjoy the live entertainment, ethnic music and Italian fare. This year's Fest saw perfect weather with temperatures in the 70s both Friday and Saturday.

Throughout the Metro East, local musicians are creating new sounds and in many cases, their authentic sounds are spilling over the river to St. Louis.

One area local band is Hard Swingers, who has been together for a little over a year. The band plays a variety of music from swing to R&B, something for everyone to enjoy.

"More and more places are hiring bands and entertainment," Paul Bonn of O'Fallon, drummer for Hard Swingers, said. "St. Louis may have more bands and musicians, but we tend to make more money on this side of the river."

"At one time, the band scene was a lot bigger. Then it began sliding down a little in the 1980s, but now it is starting to pick up again," Bonn said.

Hard Swingers has played all over the Metro East at bars such as B&B Crehans in Belleville, Lou & Michelle's in Waterloo and every Thursday at Race Cafe in O'Fallon.

Crushed Blue Velvet is one of the bands who has spilled over the river and become a regular on Laclede's Landing at Planet Hollywood on Friday nights. They describe their music as erotic funk and pop.

Jeff Lee, Belleville, lead singer for Crushed Blue Velvet, said many bands fall into a rut and if the band is in the right place at the right time, the music scene can be really good.

"The band has to promote themselves and not just wait for clubs or bars to only promote them," Lee said.

Another style of music that can be found on this side of the river is country. Pat Major of Caseyville of Rockin' Horse, said the bar and nightclub scene changes so quickly because they come and go one Rockin' Horse has gone all over to play. They frequent Wild Country, a popular coun-try music club in Collinsville, at least twice a month. Along with playing at Riverport Amphitheater in St. Louis, they have also opened for Merle Haggard at Wild Country and Ricki Skaggs at the Busch Grand Nationals at Gateway International Speedway.

Major said there has been one entertainment venue that has really put a strain on nightclubs and local country bands.

"The casinos can bring in a national artist for thousands of dollars and plus they offer so many other things to its customers," Major said. "Local bands find it hard to compete with the casinos."

Mike Garrett of Fairview Heights, drummer for Toast and Jam, said their music uses the same structure as many other bands, but their songs never sound the same way

With some jazz influence, they also have influences in rock 'n roll, alternative and funk sound.

Toast and Jam plays at 313, East Main Street, Belleville, at least once a month. They have also played at Mississippi Nights and the old Cicero's in University City, Mo. Among other venues, they played in a few fundraisers with Dread Aid Productions to raise money for the Belleville Women's Crisis Center and a fellow musician, who lost all his belongings in an apartment

Garrett said the local music scene is easy to get into, its just up to the bands to get its foot in the door by playing at the same place once a week or once a month and getting their names in the paper for others to see.

Dave Goodman, Collinsville, has been playing guitar with Ring Cicada for three years. The band began in the Chicago area, but later the band members moved back to Collinsville.

Goodman classifies their music with a classic rock influence, mixed with jazz and the blues. Goodman said the origin of their music has been from the music they listened to during high school

Goodman said the local scene may be easy to get into, but it's not always as easy to be accepted.

"It takes time to get the respect that many of these bands deserve," Goodman said. "It's like winning the lottery. A band may play 10 shows or a thousand shows for them to hit it big."

In the next couple of weeks, each of these bands will be playing in a bar or club in either the Metro East or St Louis. Upcoming dates for the bands are as follows: Crushed Blue Velvet will be giving the audience an experience to remember on Sunday after the Rams game at Planet Hollywood in St. Louis. Ring Cicada will be rockin' with their "southern fried" rock at bar 313, Friday. Rockin' Horse will give a little taste of country to its crowd at Wild Country, Friday and Saturday

'Blue Streak' is entertaining but not very deep

Forgetable featherweight/mismatched partners comedy is a good distraction at best

Miles Logan doesn't mean any harm, really. He's nice enough, smiles a lot, likes to crack wise. Just let him pull off his high-tech diamond heist and he'll be on his way.

Naturally, however, since Miles Logan is played by Martin Lawrence, things are going to get much more complicated. Thus unfolds "Blue Streak," a pleasing but featherweight comedy brought to you from the far reaches of the Mismatched Police Partners

Thanks to a double-crossing partner (Peter Greene), Miles is nabbed by the police, but not before he tapes the diamond to the inside of a third-floor air duct in a new building still under construction.

Cut to two years later:
Miles emerges from prison, cocky as ever, and returns to collect his booty. Trouble is, the building at Grand Avenue and Fifth Street is now a police station. And the third floor is - you guessed it - robbery-homicide.

So he does what any comicturned-actor would: He creates a case of mistaken identity. He alters a police access badge he's stolen, rehearses law-enforcement techniques by watching a few episodes of "COPS" and returns in a couple of days to the belly of the beast as Detective Malone, new transfer to the 37th precinct.

He's partnered with by-thebook Detective Carlson (Luke Wilson), a fresh-faced, newly promoted cop whom the higher-ups think could use a seasoned pro like Malone to learn from. Carlson begins to idolize Malone - and adopt some of his more unorthodox techniques.

Trouble is, Malone - knowing the criminal element all too well - is too talented a cop for his own good. He uncovers scams and nabs crooks like nobody's business, and each inadvertent triumph inflates his reputation.

Within a week, he's the precinct's new folk hero - and the acting head of the burglary unit. Even grizzled veteran Hardcastle (William Forsythe) is eventually won over.

These accidental arrests make for some of the funniest scenes in the movie. The more Miles tries to maintain a low profile, the more arrests he makes. In one, he runs into a convenience-store gunman and tries to hide but ultimately must intervene.

"Put your hands on the pavement!" he yells.

"There IS no pavement," the hooded thug replies.

"Then put your hands on the Oodles of Noodles!"

"Chicken or beef?"
The gunman turns out to be Tulley (Dave Chappelle), an old crony of Miles', who ends up being the comic relief to Lawrence's comic relief. But the context of Chappelle's performance evokes an unsettling feeling of racism; at times the script treats Tully, who is black, as if he came from the Mantan Moreland school of Pop-eyed Negro Comedy.

As the escapades of Miles/Detective Malone bounce to their rollicking conclusion (a confusing "Beverly Hills Cop"-style scene involving several levels of drug dealers and some cop chases on Southern California highways), Miles faces two problems: Will he get the diamond back? And will his ruse be discovered?

'American Beauty' explores the modern family

Realistic view of the condition of the family makes 'Beauty' one of the best recent dramas

Kevin Spacey and Annette Bening in a scene from the DreamWorks Pictures' release, "American Beauty."

Now and then - far too infrequently - a film comes along that offers a sliver of legitimate wisdom about the condition of the family in 20thcentury America.

Robert Redford's "Ordinary

People" (1980) did it. So did Ang Lee's "The Ice Storm" (1997). Now, director Sam Mendes' "American Beauty takes its place among the best family dramas of recent Subtle and harrowing, full of cockeyed humor and visceral pain, "American Beauty" explores a modern family what makes it tick, and how each tick can herald the existence of a time bomb moving inexorably toward detonation.

Lester Burnham (Kevin Spacey), writer for a boosteroriented ad magazine, is coping with early middle age. A comfortable, suburban life has left him self-indulgent and a bit disoriented.

"I know I've lost something," he says, "but I don't know what it is."

His wife, Carolyn (Annette Bening), is insolent and selfpitying, driven inside her frosty shell by years of rising anger at her husband and her lot. A real-estate agent who dresses and furnishes like a bon vivant, she nonetheless is so emotionally eviscerated that, when she cries, she simultaneously upbraids herself for doing so.

Their high-school-age daughter, Jane (Thora Birch), is hovering near the junction of adulthood and troubled teen certain she's ugly, thoroughly disgusted at her parents' suburban artificiality.

Add a cryptic boy who lives next door named Ricky (Wes Bentley) and his strange parents, throw in a teen-age Lolita named Angela (Mena Suvari) and you have a potboiler that could go any direction.

And it does. Lester encounters Angela, Jane's cheerleading buddy, and falls immediately and obviously in lust with her, much to his daughter's disgust. Jane catches Ricky watching her and is both repelled and fascinated. Carolyn flirts with her competitor (Peter Gallagher, at his oiliest). Ricky's Marine Corps father grapples with the presence of a gay couple in the neighborhood. Illicit lusts blos-

If all this seems dizzying and disjointed, that's sort of the point. What unifies it all is Lester, who is either falling apart or finally waking up. His attraction for Angela and the confusion it produces sends him on a journey of selfdestruction and discovery

He molts convulsively from a randy Walter Mitty into some sort of rampaging suburban John Belushi, energized by the very things that should hurt him, watching his life unravel even as it becomes enjoyable again.

As matters hurtle toward their conclusions, it is Lester who - with both his vices and his formidable attempts at being honorable - pushes them

Spacey's Lester is a wonderful, terrible junk pile of whimsy and rage, self-doubt and resurgent hormones. And Bening, who deserved a break after an unintelligible script scuttled her fine work in January's "In Dreams," gives

Test your TV ad IQ

Commercials trivial

By Kevin Carbery Staff writer

During the summer, TV Guide published what its panel of experts considered to be the 50 greatest television commercials of all time.

It was an interesting topic, because we all are bombarded with commercials every day and only a small percentage of the spots we see are worth remembering.

According to TV Guide's advertising experts, the best commercial of all time is the one for Apple Mackintosh computers based on the book "1984" that was run during the 1984 Super Bowl broadcast. I have to agree that it was a good one.

The commercials I am most likely to pay attention to see the famy ones. The current compaign for A&W Root Beer has been a host, particularly the spot in which a guy applying for a jeb mispronounces the name "Mr.

Locally, I think Schweig Engel has produced many campy, humoreum TV spots over the years. My favorite has been the one in which the Schweig Engel players are dressed in "Star Trek" attire, but I almost always laugh but I almost always laugh whenever I see any of the store's commercials.

What I do not like are commercials in which one compa-ny runs down another. While this practice has not been confined to any one or two indus-" tries, it has been most notable in ads for fast food, soft drink and long-distance telephone and long-distance telephone service companies. Just warn-ing you, ad folks, if I see an attack ad, I am much more likely to sympathize with who-ever you are slamming than I am to want to buy your prod-

Finally, I haven't men-tioned Victoria's Secret spots until now because I feel they are in a class of their own. They are true works of art. For this weeks's trivia quiz

, the topic is television com-mercials.

1. What are the names of the two lizards in Budweiser's current ad campaign?

2. What product did two old men named Frank and Ed try to sell in spots that ran throughout the 1980s?

3. Walker and Gabe were cowboys selling what kind of beer in the 1970s?

4. In a popular commercial of the 1960s, a man walking through a sleeping compartment on a train saw people passing a snack back and forth and horned in on it. What was the product?

5. Dan Dierdorf, mimicking a famous Mean Joe Greene Coca-Cola ad, offered his sweaty jersey to a kid in a local commercial for what company?

6. What company used the line, "It's not nice to fool Mother Nature" in its commercials for years?

7. Iron Eyes Cody appeared in popular public service ads urging Americans to avoid doing what?

8. Actor Dick Wilson has appeared on TV since 1964 in commercials for what prod-

9. What company used sub-titles to say that the spokesman in their commercials was telling lies in a 1980s ad campaign?

10. An ad for what product had a guy who had eaten peanut butter try to win a radio contest by saying the name "Aaron Burr"? ANSWERS: 1. Frank and Louie. I get a kick out of acid-tongued Louie. 2. Bartles and Jaymes wine coolers. 3. Falstaff. The commercials used to run all the time during Blues hockey broadcasts in the 1970s. 4. Cracker Jack. 5. Vess soda. 6. Chiffon margarine. 7. Littering. He was the Indian paddling down a river watching people pollute. 8. Charmin toilet paper, as Mr. Whipple. 9. Isuzu. 10.

time, which is better than half your attention for hours and hours. Start a savings account. A love relationship goes to the next level of intimacy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23).
You are intuitive and wise. A mil lion problems can be solved with a heartfelt hug.
You might be blamed for some thing that your lover's ex did. Credit card spending has got to stop. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Make money deals final. Someone close transfers his or her insecurities to you. Never mind what a cynic says about love. Making better use of your time will measurably save you money. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). An emotional trial triumphantly concludes. Your relationships are unique and can not be run by other peo-ple's rules and standards. Beware of sob stories - sensitivity now encourages you to believe too much.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You gain an excellent rep for teaching. Sticking to a budget brings goals to hand. It turns out that what bugs you about a lover is really your own problem. Long-distance friends move closer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A wide audience loves you. Leave in-laws out of the romantic mix. Couples go to the movies together and fall in love. Talk of commitment is scarce, but actions speak louder than words.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Let yourself be enticed by an eager new romance possibly a Leo or Virgo. Recent socializing gives new intuition in matters of money. Worthy causes need you. Offer to take care of a friend's pet.

a career performance here. Birch, whose emotions bubble quietly and sear viciously, plays Jane just right - an ado-lescent struggling between wanting to love her parents and seeing their blemishes in stark relief, as only an off-stark rener, as only an one-spring can.

As haunting piano and strings push this misfit block party to its agonizing climax, you know what's ahead, because Lester's narration told you at the beginning: He is going to die. Things will implode. But in what manner?
Ultimately, Lester's end comes at his moment of redemption, and it resonates with quiet irony. His liberation becomes his undoing, but not before he has emerged as the kindest, most stouthearted person in a confused lot of misdirected souls.

What makes the film desolate snapshot of Am life is the normality of M life is the normalcy of function: Everybedy's ble and everybody's ners "American Beauty" is "American Beesty" is American tragady. In it, we can recognize curselves. And the mirror is not only cracked; it's shottered and cannot be fixed.

"American Beauty," a Dreamworks release, is written by Alan Ball and produced by Bruce Cohen and Dan Jinks. It is rated R.

'Blue Streak'

It doesn't really matter. This is lighthearted fare, despite the casual foul language. And though "Blue Streak" certainly isn't a film for the ages, it's an entertaining distraction that will leave you smiling and will be forgotten by tomorrow morning.

"Blue Streak," a Columbia Pictures release, is directed by Les Mayfield. It is rated PG-13.

Kevin Costner returns to his field of dreams

It's lunchtime in Manhattan and Kevin Costner is on the menu.

Knots of journalists mill about, waiting their turn to take a bite out of the star. His boyish charm can no longer satiate this post-"Waterworld," post-"Postman" crowd.

Costner, once a sacred cow, has become steak tartar.

"If you believe in yourself, you just have to walk forward. You're going to suffer the slings and arrows," he said. "I just have to go forward."

Tucking his legs up onto a sofa, Costner exhales deeply. He is dressed sportily: white pants, pristine white sneakers and a white polo shirt under a sleeveless V-neck sweater.

"I'm mixed up about some things in my life," he continues, "but I ain't mixed up about how to approach my work. I'm just not. Maybe that rubs people wrong - the certainty with which I come to something — because they're not certain about anything."

This is a recurring theme for Costner, a filmmaker with an impossibly taut moral compass and a black-and-white view when it comes to the "art" of movies.

"Kevin has great integrity as a man," says actress Kelly Preston. "He's got strong con-victions. He's like a good ol' boy - he's got very American down-home values.

Those values - plus, of course, his sun-kissed looks — helped catapult Costner into the oxygen-deprived heights of the Hollywood elite during the late 1980s.

His string of hits — "No Way Out," "The Untouchables," "Bull Durham," "Field of Dreams" — were so impressive that Costner was likened to Gary Cooper, a post modern throwback to the stoic, struggling hero. By 1990, he could do what he wanted. And he did.

Costner devoted the next 18 months - and sank all his cash — into his directorial debut: a three-hour Western with subtitles in Lakota Sioux. People thought he'd gone nuts.

That movie was really beaten up before it ever came out," he said. "Nobody ever wants to write about it in that way, but I remember reading just awful things about what I was maybe doing out in South

He was quietly brewing up a blockbuster: "Dances With Wolves" earned 12 Academy Award nominations and won seven Oscars, including best picture and best direction awards.

More movies followed with Costner as star, including "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves," "JFK" and "The Bodyguard." Costner was the third highest-paid entertainer in 1991-92 with a net worth of $71 million, according to Forbes magazine.

"It didn't change me at all," Costner said. "You have to pursue what you want because there's a lot of noise out there to keep you from doing what it is you want to do."

"For Love of the Game" features Costner in what he admits is his most autobiographical film to date: the tale of an aging pitcher forced to face an emotional and physical crossroads.

When he looks back at his own past - his breakneck rise, precipitous descent and critical whupping . Costner sounds a lot like another of his characters: Tin Cup, the golfer who hits the same risky shot over and over simply on principle.

"You know, movies have been marked through time as being dismissed and then finding their way back into a psyche. Whether that movie does or not is not important. I'm comfortable with what happened," Costner said.

"There are people I can look at and I can say, "Is my aim true?' And they'll go, "Yeah.' Then why is this happening? They go, "It's a funny world, Kev.' It's like the nail that stands up has to get knocked down. You have a bad habit of standing up," he said. "There are, I think, actors and people who have dealt with fame in unusual ways that have changed, that have tried to reinvent themselves. I haven't done that.

Sept

"I've had life-altering experiences - be it divorce or someriences - bet I haven't changed.
I've gotten smarter - about the way I feel about movies. But about what I think is right and wrong? No, I haven't changed."
